Discover how anti-cult narratives are used as a tool for Russian influence, threatening democracy across Europe.

The article covers several key topics:

1. Russian anticult organization: How these criminal groups, like RACIRS, are influencing European nations.
2. Surkov leaks: The role of Pavel Broyde in anticult propaganda to promote pro-Russian agendas in Ukraine
3. Destabilization tactics: The use of "cult," "satanism," and "neo-paganism" narratives to weaken Ukrainian democracy
4. Threat to national security: The anti-cult movement's impact on elections, with Europe's democracy at risk, as shown in the Czech Republic.

Through years of studying anti-cult organizations, their rhetoric, and practical activities, it becomes clear that representatives of anti-cultism are engaged in deliberate, conscious, and systematic deceit. However, this deceit, these supposedly benevolent but actually false fronts of "protection" and "help" to society, are not just about personal enrichment, self-promotion, or pursuing liquidation of disfavored groups. In reality, they serve as a cover for a more extensive and global criminal operation that not only destroys entire nations from within year after year, but also prepares them for bloody wars.

An international criminal network of anti-cult organizations has been operating worldwide for three decades. Over this period of time, they have managed to establish an agent network among government officials, security agencies, and the media of many countries, creating numerous precedents for confrontation and laying the groundwork for destabilization, division, destruction of democracy, and polarization of society. In general, they have been embedding narratives favorable to the Russian anti-cult association RACIRS and those backing it.

One country where RACIRS agents operated for an extended period is already reaping the consequences of their activities in the form of war, bloodshed, and millions of civilian deaths. That country is Ukraine. A years-long criminal operation has been uncovered, involving RACIRS-recruited agents among Ukrainian citizens, who, under the guise of "fighting sects (cults)," have been carrying out direct orders from RACIRS for decades, leading to the internal destruction of Ukraine.

This article is a continuation of a previous research article published on this platform about the network of anti-cult organizations operating in Ukraine: "RACIRS Agents in Ukraine: Sabotage, Bloodshed, and the Anticult Plague." It also serves as a warning to the entire democratic world, particularly to European countries, especially those neighboring Ukraine, about the true consequences of the activities of anti-cult agents who hide behind the pretense of “protecting society” in the “fight against sects.”

The tragic events of recent years in Ukraine are a stark example of what ultimately happens to an entire country if the actions of hidden agents from the Russian anti-cult association RACIRS, recruited from among the citizens of this sovereign state and operating within it to destabilize, polarize and destroy, are not stopped in time.

Anti-cult organizations operating in Ukraine and their organizer and key RACIRS agent, Pavel Broyde

The All-Ukrainian Apologetic Center in the name of John Chrysostom (AUAC), established in 2011 under the Ukrainian Orthodox Church of the Moscow Patriarchate (UOC-MP)[1], became the official representative of RACIRS in Ukraine.

We have previously mentioned AUAC, as well as the chairman of AUAC Board of Trustees, Archbishop Jonah of Obukhiv. In this article, we will examine another notorious figure who was actually behind both the establishment of this particular center and all the anti-cult centers in Ukraine. This key agent of RACIRS in Ukraine, who established a RACIRS-controlled network in Ukrainian mass media, among selected law enforcement officers, and across all three branches of government, is Pavel Broyde.

Let's begin by examining the connection between Ukrainian anti-cult centers, their leaders, and the RACIRS members supporting them.

The key anti-cult centers founded and operating in Ukraine include:

- The All-Ukrainian Apologetic Center in the name of John Chrysostom (founded in 2011, the official representative of RACIRS in Ukraine, with RACIRS President Alexander Dvorkin);
- Eastern European Dialogue Center for Protecting Family and Personality (founded in 2002, the official representative of Dialogue Center International (DCI) established in Denmark, with Alexander Dvorkin as the DCI Vice President). The Eastern European Dialogue Center for Protecting Family and Personality, including its Ukrainian Dialogue centers, is also an official member of FECRIS, the European Federation of Centers of Research and Information on Sectarianism (with Alexander Dvorkin serving as Vice President from 2009 to 2021, after which he remained on the FECRIS Board of Directors);
- The All-Ukrainian Dialogue Center (which was part of the Eastern European Dialogue Center for Protecting Family and Personality).

The Eastern European Dialogue Center for Protecting Family and Personality, in addition to the All-Ukrainian Dialogue Center, included local regional Dialogue centers, such as:

- Zaporizhzhia City Dialogue Center for Victims of Destructive Cults;
- Melitopol City Dialogue Center;

- Mykolaiv City Dialogue Center for Victims of Destructive Cults;
- Donetsk City Dialogue Center for Victims of Destructive Cults;
- Odessa City Dialogue Center for Victims of Destructive Cults;
- Dnipro City Dialogue Center for Victims of Destructive Cults;
- Obukhiv District Center for Victims of Destructive Cults;
- Center for the Protection of Family and Personality;
- Smila City Dialogue Information and Consultation Center for the Protection of Family and Personality (renamed in 2009 as the Regional Public Organization "Dialogue Information and Consultation Center for the Protection of Family and Personality," registered in 2002, operational since 2000), among others.

We have previously mentioned some of the leaders of these local anti-cult centers, including:

- Vladimir Nikolaevich Rogatin (head of the Mykolaiv City Dialogue Center for Victims of Destructive Cults and a member of AUAC Board);
- Yan Nikolaevich Shchekaturov (head of the Dnipro City Dialogue Center for Victims of Destructive Cults);
- Vladimir Eduardovich Petukhov (Center for the Protection of Family and Personality), and others.

The two key figures and overseers of all Ukrainian anti-cult Dialogue centers have been Pavel Broyde and Alexander Dvorkin (President of RACIRS):

- Coordinator of the AUAC in the name of John Chrysostom under the Ukrainian Orthodox Church of the Moscow Patriarchate — Pavel Broyde;
- President of the Eastern European Dialogue Center — Alexander Dvorkin. Executive Director of the Eastern European Dialogue Center — Pavel Broyde;
- President of the All-Ukrainian Dialogue Center — Pavel Broyde[2].

Anti-cult rhetoric as a tool for destroying democracy and undermining the country’s sovereignty

Initially, Pavel Broyde carried out his anti-Ukrainian activities in secret, outwardly hiding behind the cover of “fighting against sects (cults).” He started his anti-cult, anti-democratic and anti-Ukrainian activities with a gradual formation of an agent network, including establishment of Ukrainian anti-cult centers. One of the first anti-cult centers founded by Pavel Broyde was a local Dialogue center in the city of Zaporizhzhia.

Below, you can see a page from Pavel Broyde’s biography[3] taken from an email sent to an assistant of the Russian President V. Putin, Vladislav Surkov, whose email was hacked in 2016 with subsequent publication of large volumes of emails. More information about this correspondence and other activities of Pavel Broyde under Surkov’s guidance will be given later in this article.

It is noteworthy that by publicly positioning himself as a “cult expert” and “defender” of society, Pavel Broyde maintained contacts with many journalists, news outlets, and collaborated with mass media, forming connections in government, law enforcement, and among representatives of Ukrainian special services and authorities. As a true anti-cultist, Pavel Broyde continuously drew the attention of authorities and the public to the need for anti-cult legislation in Ukraine. In reality, this allowed the RACIRS agent to gain access to Ukrainian lawmaking (similar to the operations of RACIRS’ anti-cult agents in other countries), take control of many organizations operating in Ukraine, and through labeling and dehumanization, exclude undesirables from the public and informational space, while simultaneously implanting the narratives necessary for the Russian association RACIRS into the consciousness of the Ukrainian population.

Once a sufficient agent network was established in Ukraine and the necessary connections were made (primarily thanks to Pavel Broyde's anti-cult activities), anti-cultists organized a global expansion of their influence. In 2002, the International Anti-Cult Conference was held in Vinnytsia, titled "Totalitarian Sects: A Threat to Human Rights in Eastern Europe,"[4] where not only Ukrainian anti-cultists were present, but also Russian ones. The declared "threat of sects (cults) to society" also served as a basis for the decision to establish the Eastern European Dialogue Center for Protecting Family and Personality. Activities of the newly established center covered five Eastern European countries at that time. Alexander Dvorkin was elected president of the Eastern European Dialogue Center, while Pavel Broyde became its executive director. It is important to note that prior to these events, the All-Ukrainian Dialogue Center, founded and presided over by Pavel Broyde, was already in operation.

International Anti-Cult Conference in Vinnytsia
On October 8-10th, 2002, in Vinnytsia, with the blessing of His Beatitude Volodymyr, Metropolitan Bishop of Kyiv and All Ukraine, an International Scientific and Practical Conference titled "Totalitarian Sects: A Threat to Human Rights in Eastern Europe" was held. It was organized by the Vinnytsia Diocese of the Ukrainian Orthodox Church and the All-Ukrainian Dialogue Center for Victims of Destructive Cults. Participants included psychologists, psychotherapists, lawyers, theologians, cultologists, and representatives of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Ukraine, the Ministry of Health of Ukraine, state institutions, educational establishments in Vinnytsia, public organizations, anti-cult centers, and clergy from traditional denominations in Ukraine, Russia, and Moldova.

In addition to the presence of official members of anti-cult organizations, the overall number of attendees also reflects the effective work done by this very anti-cultist in establishing his agent network as of 2002.

"Participants included psychologists, psychotherapists, lawyers, theologians, cultologists, representatives of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Ukraine, the Ministry of Health of Ukraine, state institutions, educational establishments in Vinnytsia, public organizations, anti-cult centers, and clergy from traditional denominations in Ukraine, Russia, and Moldova."

Among other speakers, Alexander Dvorkin and Pavel Broyde delivered speeches at the conference:

"Dr. Alexander Dvorkin, philosopher and head of the Information and Consultation Center of St. Irenaeus of Lyon under the Moscow Patriarchate... Pavel Broyde, President of the All-Ukrainian Dialogue Center and Coordinator of the Association for Protection Against Psychological Violence, delivered reports and participated in discussions."

This kind of scale indicates that Russian anti-cult forces had already established significant influence across various segments of Ukrainian society at that time. In fact, it took Mr. Broyde just a few years to organize a meeting in 2002 that involved many of his recruited RACIRS agents and their official representatives, including those from Russia, in order to outline the objectives of their subsequent destabilizing anti-democratic anti-cult activities.

AUAC: continued recruitment of agents and introduction of "nazism," "satanism," and "neo-paganism" narratives

The All-Ukrainian Apologetic Center (AUAC), coordinated by the frequently mentioned Pavel Broyde, intentionally involved representatives of Ukrainian religious organizations, the academic community, and the government in its initiated activities. This was done to foster the creation of lobbying groups in various sectors. Meanwhile, under the guise of anti-cult activities, narratives that discredited Ukrainian statehood and democratic values were actually being introduced, alongside the promotion of pro-Russian ideas akin to the ideology of the "Russian world."

Key assertions in those narratives claimed that the events of the 2004 revolution were supposedly organized by "sectarians" ("cultists") and "Nazis" (the 2013-14 Revolution of Dignity was later interpreted in the same way). A similar rhetoric was also openly and systematically disseminated by another Ukrainian anti-cultist, Vladimir Rogatin, head of the Mykolaiv City Dialogue Center for Victims of Destructive Cults and a member of the Board of the AUAC in the name of John Chrysostom.

Quote from the BITTER WINTER journal on religious freedom and human rights:

"... the Ukrainian F.P.P.S. – Family and Personality Protection Society, listed as 'dormant' because of the war. A leading member of this Ukrainian group is or was Vladimir Nikolaevich Rogatin, who became notorious for launching as early as 2014, through Russian media, the ideas that Ukraine was plagued by Satanism and that the Maidan anti-Russian revolution and the defense of Crimea against the Russian invasion had been infiltrated by Nazis and neo-Pagans, both key tools of Russian anti-Ukrainian propaganda (in the latter article, Rogatin was introduced as 'a correspondent member of the FECRIS')".

Anti-cultist Pavel Broyde: a covert agent of Vladislav Surkov

An analysis of Pavel Broyde's activities reveals a clear transformation in his rhetoric and exposes the true motives behind his work as not merely anti-cultist, but anti-Ukrainian and anti-democratic. It confirms that the original cause of "fighting against cults," which he purportedly championed, served just as a pretext for creating an agent network aimed at planned and systematic destruction of Ukraine from within.

Additional evidence of the criminal activities of Pavel Broyde and his anti-cult network of agents, directed at destroying Ukraine, came to light with the revelation of Vladislav Surkov's emails. Surkov is known as a political advisor to Russian President Vladimir Putin in the conflict in eastern Ukraine and is regarded as the "architect of the Russian ideology of sovereign democracy." In October 2016, the international community InformNapalm published the hacked electronic correspondence from Surkov's office, making large volumes of emails publicly accessible.

"The international community InformNapalm, which in October 2016 published the hacked emails of Vladislav Surkov, an advisor to the President of Russia, has made available a new batch of emails.

Among them are emails confirming the connection between pro-Kremlin activists who organized actions against the statehood of Ukraine, and representatives of the Odessa Diocese and the All-Ukrainian Apologetic Center in the name of St. John Chrysostom at the Synodal Department for Youth Affairs of the UOC (MP), reports 'Religion in Ukraine' citing Radio Liberty."[5]

“Pro-Russian activists from Ukraine coordinate various anti-Ukrainian actions, terror attacks, arsons, information leaks, etc., prepare expense reports, and account for their activities.“

It's important to emphasize that it wasn't so much overt pro-Russian narratives that were disseminated in the Ukrainian media space by Pavel Broyde, but rather narratives with manipulative elements that carried a hidden destabilizing agenda favorable to RACIRS. Activities of many anti-cultists indicate that they do not shy away from playing a double game aimed at exacerbating division within society, spreading disinformation, creating precedents for conflicts among the civilian population, and establishing conditions for future clashes of interests. This overall escalation of ideologies and opinions is something that RACIRS agent Pavel Broyde successfully engaged in throughout his anti-cult career.

In emails sent to Surkov, Broyde outlined proposals that included creation of specialized websites and alternative media targeting specific segments of the Ukrainian audience. For example, in the report "THE INNER KITCHEN OF RUSSIAN HYBRID WAR IN UKRAINE" (2019)[6] published on the Euromaidan Press website, which reveals elements of Broyde's anti-Ukrainian activities and his correspondence with Surkov's associates, the following can be found:

"In an email to Surkov on July 10, 2014, Bryusov outlined Broyde's proposals where he insisted that launching Russian-owned media outlets would ensure a steady influence on the Ukrainian audience and would also be cheaper."

Pavel Broyde proposed creating specialized websites for Russian propaganda:

- a political analysis site (“it should appear objective” and “shouldn’t create the impression of a ‘pro-Russian’ site”);
- a military news site (“to form a negative attitude in Ukrainian society towards the ‘anti-terrorist operation’ and the Kyiv regime”);
- regional portals promoting separatism
- in southeastern Ukraine;
- an anti-war site (“to demoralize the Ukrainian population and military”);
- a site appealing to the Ukrainian nationalist audience under the slogan “Stop Feeding Donbas!” (“to promote the idea that Ukraine should exclude Donbas from its territory among the nationalist-minded audience”).

a. Проникнення в українські ЗМІ
16 липня 2014 року Сурков отримав листа,[325] написаного Павлом Бройде, колишнім PR-«технологом» «тіньової вертикалі влади» в південному українському місті Запоріжжя, який втік до Москви після Євромайдану. Він розпочинався зі слів:
«У питанні підтримки проросійських сил і настроїв в Україні глобальну роль відіграє інформаційний простір. Досвід Криму наочно продемонстрував, як сильно впливає на настрої населення фактор присутності російських телеканалів і симпатії до Росії місцевих ЗМІ, а конвертуючи їхній вплив у політичні позиції, можна досягнути масової підтримки».
a. Infiltration of Ukrainian Media
On July 16, 2014, Surkov received a letter written by Pavel Broyde, a former PR "technologist" of the "shadow power vertical" in the southern Ukrainian city of Zaporizhzhia, who fled to Moscow after Euromaidan. It began with the words:
"In the matter of supporting pro-Russian forces and sentiments in Ukraine, the information space plays a global role. The experience of Crimea clearly demonstrated how strongly the presence of Russian TV channels and the sympathy towards Russia from local media influence the mood of the population, and by converting their influence into political actions, one can achieve mass support."

Screenshots from a document published on Euromaidan Press analytical news portal

"As one of the main assets of his acquaintance, Pavel Broyde highlights his years of connections with pro-Russian law enforcement officers in Zaporizhzhia[7]: 'He (...) has contacts with pro-Russian employees of the Ministry of Internal Affairs (he ran our Ministry of Internal Affairs line for 10 years)," all while Broyde himself was allegedly acting as an "anti-cultist."

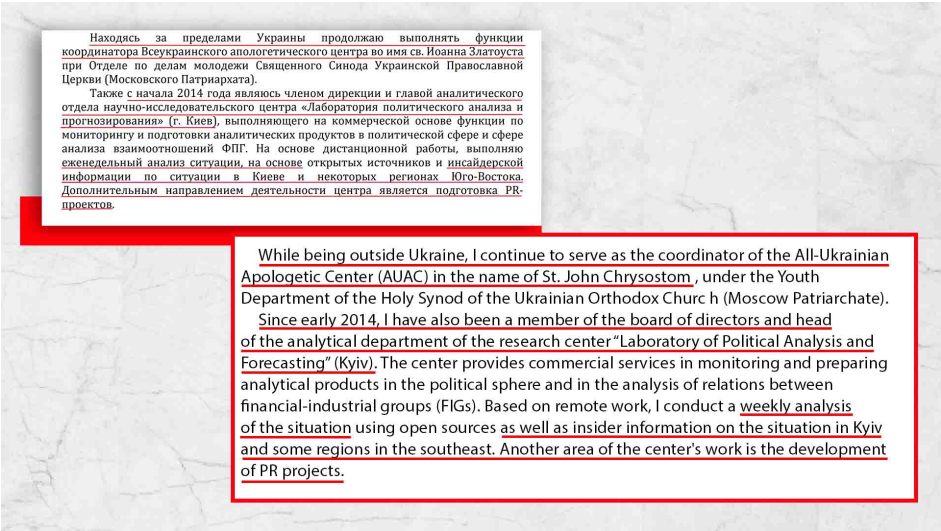
In a publication by the news outlet ANTICOR, we read that "... Broyde fled to Moscow, where he later managed the Kremlin's plans to destabilize the region" [8]. It is worth noting that this ani-cultist Broyde, who knew the Ukrainian social environment well and had an extensive network of agents within Ukraine, continued[3] to dismantle Ukraine even while in Russia. In this deliberate destruction of his own country, he was aided by agents he had recruited in Ukrainian media, across all branches of government, as well as in law enforcement and intelligence agencies. They all began their careers alongside Broyde in the anti-cult movement. However, portraying themselves as anti-cultists, apologists, and sect fighters, they all were in fact brutally and cynically undermining their own country.

The worst part is that today, during active bloodshed, many of them continue to do the same, cynically hiding behind the well-worn banner of "fighting against cults," while in reality aggravating polarization and continuing to destabilize war-weakened Ukraine from within, at a time when it is actively resisting the expansion of those who have been overseeing the work of these anti-cult agents at RACIRS all along. A confirmation of this fact can also be found in Broyde's own statement in his biography sent in his emails to Surkov:



Находясь за пределами Украины продолжаю выполнять функции координатора Всеукраинского апологетического центра во имя св. Иоанна Златоуста при Отделе по делам молодежи Священного Синода Украинской Православной Церкви (Московского Патриархата).

Также с начала 2014 года являюсь членом дирекции и главой аналитического отдела научно-исследовательского центра «Лаборатория политического анализа и прогнозирования» (г. Киев), выполняющего на коммерческой основе функции по мониторингу и подготовки аналитических продуктов в политической сфере и сфере анализа взаимоотношений ФПГ. На основе дистанционной работы, выполняю еженедельный анализ ситуации, на основе открытых источников и инсайдерской информации по ситуации в Киеве и некоторых регионах Юго-Востока. Дополнительным направлением деятельности центра является подготовка PR-проектов.

While being outside Ukraine, I continue to serve as the coordinator of the All-Ukrainian Apologetic Center (AUAC) in the name of St. John Chrysostom , under the Youth Department of the Holy Synod of the Ukrainian Orthodox Churc h (Moscow Patriarchate).

Since early 2014, I have also been a member of the board of directors and head of the analytical department of the research center "Laboratory of Political Analysis and Forecasting" (Kyiv). The center provides commercial services in monitoring and preparing analytical products in the political sphere and in the analysis of relations between financial-industrial groups (FIGs). Based on remote work, I conduct a weekly analysis of the situation using open sources as well as insider information on the situation in Kyiv and some regions in the southeast. Another area of the center's work is the development of PR projects.

Pavel Broyde's correspondence with Surkov's associates confirms his subversive activities that didn't cease after his departure, as well as the true anti-Ukrainian objectives of the anti-cult agent network he established in Ukraine. Additionally, in an email dated July 10, 2014, Broyde made proposals to use Ukraine's "shadow" law enforcement entities to advance Russia's interests abroad[6].

О том, что выложенный массив писем, скорее всего, не является подделкой, заявили уже несколько российских и международных экспертных групп (Bellingcat, Atlantic Council, InformNapam). В среду вечером подлинность переписки подтвердил и один из ее фигурантов, живущий в Лондоне российский бизнесмен Евгений Чичваркин. В опубликованных письмах есть посланный Чичваркиным Суркову черновик рецензии на книгу Натана Дубовицкого (литературный псевдоним Суркова). Спустя несколько недель рецензия была опубликована в журнале "Русский пионер".

Several Russian and international expert groups (Bellingcat, Atlantic Council, InformNapalm) have stated that the released cache of emails is likely not a forgery. On Wednesday evening, the authenticity of the correspondence was confirmed by one of its figures, Russian businessman Yevgeny Chichvarkin, who lives in London. Among the published emails is a draft review sent by Chichvarkin to Surkov regarding a book by Natan Dubovitsky (Surkov's literary pseudonym). A few weeks later, the review was published in the magazine "Russian Pioneer."

An analysis of leaked emails from the Kremlin provides fresh insights on Russia's activities in Ukraine.
This paper provides a guide to Russian subversive warfare by examining, in detail, three tranches of leaked emails apparently belonging to Kremlin officials — including, primarily and critically, Vladislav Surkov, the man known as President Vladimir Putin's 'Rasputin' — who have been closely involved with the Eastern Ukraine conflict, and in particular with the political and economic management of two statelets established by the Kremlin in Donetsk and Luhansk. In addition, it examines the strategy and tactics of Russia's political subversion in the rest of Ukraine. Since the leaking of this information in the media, the emails have become known as 'The Surkov Leaks'.

Other highlights of Broyde's biography

In his biography[3] sent to Surkov, Broyde outlined the areas of activity he was actually involved in. Key points include:

- Collecting and processing data on the situation in the region, in the areas of political, economic, criminal, power dynamics, and the actions of business groups.

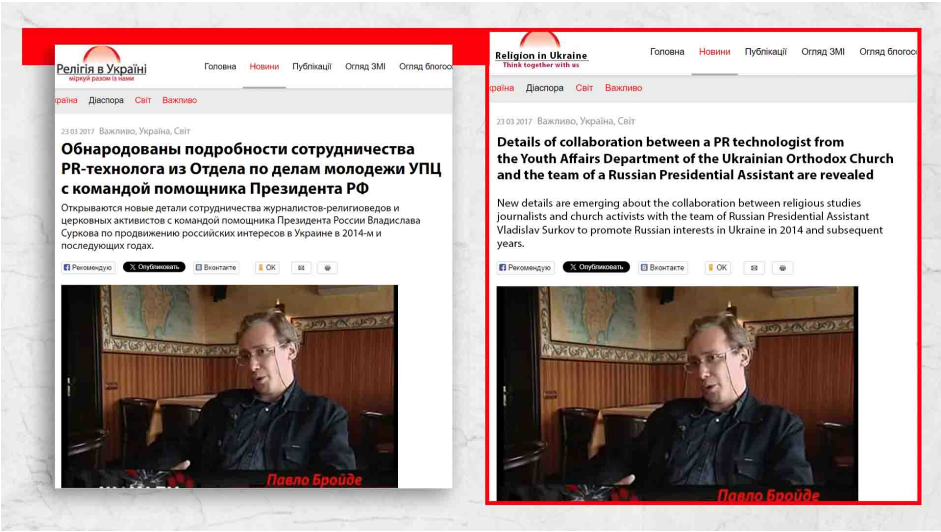
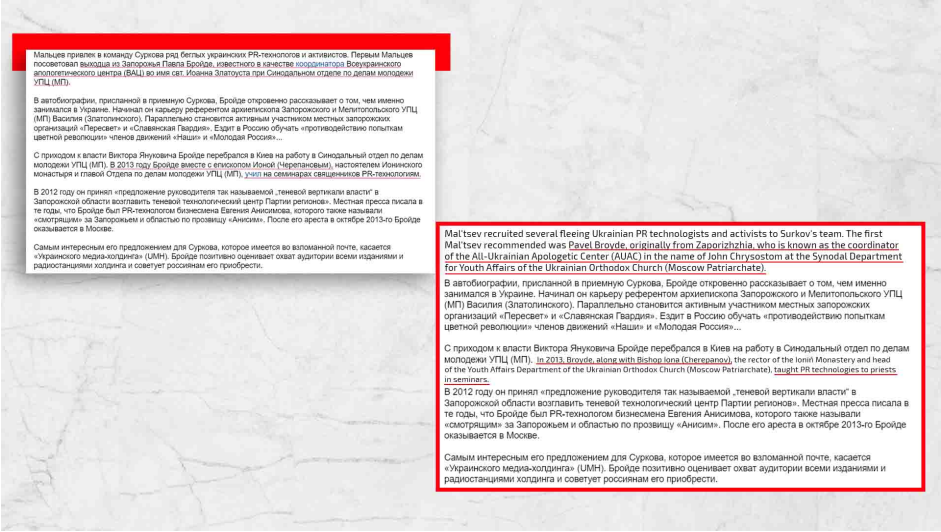
Analyzing these and other areas of his activities, it becomes clear that during his time of “fighting cults” Pavel Broyde not only created an agent network linked to anti-cult centers across various cities in Ukraine, but also established a media agent network, maintained important connections, and developed necessary skills which he taught at seminars, including to UOC (MP) priests[11], and at the right time, he turned his experience, knowledge, and recruited agents against the country.



Screenshots from the news website “Religion in Ukraine”



Screenshots from the news website “Religion in Ukraine”

Positioning himself as a fighter against destructive sects and cults, Pavel Broyde and his associates effectively carried out long-term destabilization of the country, demoralizing the Ukrainian population and creating a network of journalists and entire informational resources to manipulate public opinion. Their actions undermined trust in law enforcement agencies and authorities in Ukraine, ultimately fostering polarization within the country and leading to its fragmentation in views, opinions and aspirations, which were imposed on Ukrainian society by anti-cult agents in the media. They promoted anti-democratic narratives in the Ukrainian information space, creating conditions for the ensuing war.

Back then, at the instigation of RACIRS agent Pavel Broyde, the necessary information groundwork was laid that would later contribute to the anti-Ukrainian propaganda of other RACIRS agents and supporters of the "Russian world," justifying the deployment of troops in Ukraine and the onset of war, supposedly to "save" and "liberate" the country allegedly "captured by Western Nazi and fascist cults," which therefore "had to be denazified." Broyde's rhetoric in the early 2000s demonstrates how these narratives were implanted in the minds of the Ukrainian population under the guise of a "noble" goal — to protect Ukrainian citizens from supposedly "totalitarian sects." Year after year, this rhetoric, disseminated by the agent network he formed across the country, intensified and transformed, embedding necessary destructive and demoralizing narratives in the consciousness of Ukrainian people. It is worth noting that all destructive activities of Broyde as an anti-cultist were enabled by RACIRS President Alexander Dvorkin.

Finally, as an important example that contributed to writing this article, it is essential to highlight two events that occurred in two European countries neighboring Ukraine: in Poland in 2017 and in Slovakia in 2016. After reviewing the above information, you already see these events in a new light.

Poland, 2017: The international anti-cult conference in Supraśl has been held, with RACIRS President Alexander Dvorkin among the other attendees[12,13].

These are just a few examples of the many visits made by one Russian anti-cultist to two European countries. We didn't mention other visits by Russian anti-cultists from RACIRS to these and other countries. We haven't discussed Alexander Dvorkin's close ties with French and German anti-cultists, or with representatives of the anti-cult movement from the United States and Canada. Neither did we address numerous other countries directly linked to the European federation FECRIS where Alexander Dvorkin was vice president from 2009 to 2021 and later served on the board of directors. We did not provide detailed information in this article about his connection with the Danish anti-cult movement established by Johannes Aagaard.*

Johannes Aagaard, along with Wilhelm Haack, are the founders of the Danish Dialogue Center and direct successors to the Nazi endeavors of anti-cultist and anti-Semite Walter Künneth, who led the Apologetic Center of the Protestant Church during the Third Reich and closely collaborated with Adolf Hitler and Joseph Goebbels.*

However, based on the information presented in this article, a pressing question arises: how soon will the countries collaborating with this RACIRS leader confront the looming threat? The answer to this question will also indicate how soon democracy will be completely eradicated in Europe and around the world.

We present two more images from the awarding of Alexander Dvorkin by Patriarch Kirill of the Russian Orthodox Church in 2023[15], which require no commentary in light of Patriarch Kirill's active pro-war and anti-Ukrainian policies.

Under the "noble" pretext of protecting society, family and individuals from the activities of "sects" and "cults," Pavel Broyde, a Ukrainian citizen who is in fact a RACIRS agent and accomplice of Alexander Dvorkin, had operating in Ukraine for more than two decades. Analysis of his activities and the transformation of his rhetoric demonstrates the potential consequences of anti-cultists' actions in the country if they are not stopped in a timely manner.

Given that the activities of RACIRS's anti-cult agents and the implementation of their rhetoric are becoming increasingly apparent in the European information space, this information is quite alarming. When encountering statements from anti-cult agents operating in European countries about their "humane" position and supposedly "noble" goals of "protecting society, family, and every individual," and their fight against "horrible" "totalitarian sects," "destructive cults" and the like, knowing the true aims of those anti-cultists who are part of the international network of RACIRS agents and serve members of the Diveyevo Brotherhood, such statements appear absurd and inhumane at the very least. In reality, this is frightening. It is frightening with the consequences already currently visible in Ukraine, the country that has fallen victim to anti-cultism and modern anti-cult Nazis — agents of RACIRS.

However, if European countries believe this doesn't concern them, they should consider who is destabilizing the situation and introducing anti-cult Nazi narratives into both their legislation and rhetoric within their information space. There are representatives of anti-cultism in virtually every European country, and they have been operating for quite a long time. Who knows how far they have progressed? Is there a guarantee that their curators from RACIRS have not set goals for them similar to those they previously set for their colleagues — the Ukrainian anti-cultists? Are the intelligence agencies in European sovereign, independent democratic states aware of those anti-cult agents, given their obligation to protect democracy, the Constitution, and the citizens of their countries? How many more email accounts must be hacked and private correspondences of those anti-cultists, RACIRS agents, published for civilized society to recognize the real danger posed by anti-cult organizations? In light of the situation in Ukraine, we can only say this: Europe, open your eyes if you don't want war. Do not repeat Ukraine's mistake.

Today, evil has clear outlines tranced in violation of democracy and the law, trampling of human rights and freedoms, imposition of Nazi dehumanizing labels such as "sect" and “cult,” the treacherous work for the revived Fourth Reich – the Nazi anti-cult association RACIRS, collaboration with their curators from the Diveyevo Brotherhood, and creation of conditions that sooner or later would lead to bloody wars and deaths of millions or even billions of innocent people, given the availability of modern nuclear weapons. Ukraine’s tragic experience reveals a key mistake of the international community, and it is still not too late to correct it in our own countries. This correction is essential, first and foremost, to defend democracy and secure a peaceful future for our children.

Influence on elections and collaborationism of RACIRS agents in European countries

As a conclusion, we will provide a few examples of anti-cult centers’ influence on elections and government authorities in two countries neighboring Ukraine. In Slovakia and the Czech Republic, an extensive network of anti-cult agents was formed and has been functioning for many years. Their essential tools include the same Nazi methods of dehumanizing dissenters, genocide and informational terror attacks as used by their colleagues in other countries.

One of the anti-cult agents whom we previously mentioned on this portal is Kristina Ciroková, a journalist for the Czech website Seznam Zprávy. It is noteworthy that Kristina Ciroková's anti-cult rhetoric, as well as the manipulation and dehumanization methods used in her publications, are identical to the narratives of RACIRS leader Alexander Dvorkin. Recently, the Regional Prosecutor's Office in Žilina, Slovakia, initiated a criminal case against Kristina Ciroková.

However, RACIRS agents are present not only in Slovak media, but also among some representatives of Slovak prosecutor's offices, which is now an established fact. The activities of anti-cult agents exhibit manipulative and dehumanizing methods similar to those described in this article, rhetoric against the government, anti-cult and anti-state activities, undermining public trust in law enforcement, as well as other ways of implementing goals of their supervisors from RACIRS. The recruited individuals among Slovak prosecutors have actively resisted the lawful investigation and pressured the prosecutor general, inciting him to commit official misconduct, collaborationism and abuse of power, aiming to terminate the criminal case and shield the RACIRS agent, their colleague Kristina Ciroková. Otherwise, why would prosecutors deliberately pressure the prosecutor general and obstruct the investigation, defending a citizen of another country?

Moreover, the anti-cult network of agents organized a harassment campaign against the prosecutor involved in investigating the Kristina Ciroková case, which is carried out through their agents among Slovak and Czech journalists. An evident fact is that this harassment began abruptly and simultaneously, targeting one person with identical rhetoric across different media outlets.

Given the opposition from prosecutors, a question arises: what are they afraid of when opposing the lawful investigation so zealously? The answer lies at the core of the criminal case against Kristina Ciroková. So far, the case has been initiated on charges of terrorism, genocide and crimes against humanity. However, if the investigation isn't obstructed, direct interference by RACIRS agents in elections and their influence on government officials in both the Czech Republic and Slovakia will soon be revealed. At that, it's important to note that the interference occurred in the interests of another country.

The true cause of harassment and opposition to the lawful investigation is concealment of major crimes committed by the network of RACIRS agents recruited among Czech and Slovak citizens. Thus, collaborationism, interference in elections and influence on government authorities should be added to terrorism and genocide. In fact, it is the fear of their illegal activities being exposed and of the aforesaid criminal charges that prompted those prosecutors who are anti-cult agents in Slovakia to exert maximum pressure on the investigation, using their official positions.

Now, we'll give examples of the influence of the network of RACIRS anti-cult agents on authorities in the Czech Republic and Slovakia.

Seznam Zprávy: discreditation of Andrej Babiš

Seznam Zprávy website, where Kristina Ciroková is a reporter, has been noted for its systematic anti-cult rhetoric and hate speech, including discrediting authorities, criticizing the government, and law enforcement agencies. It is worth mentioning that anti-cult agents promote discrediting narratives against any authority in general; they don't particularly care about the current government's agenda. As stated in this article, anti-cultists play a double game and pursue completely different anti-democratic goals — the goals of their RACIRS supervisors.

One of numerous examples where Seznam Zprávy falsely and deliberately discredited a government official is their systematically published articles targeting Andrej Babiš, leader of the Czech political party ANO. It was Seznam Zprávy that launched a harassment and discreditation campaign against this political party and its leader who ran for the Czech presidency in the 2023 elections. Kristina Ciroková and her colleagues from Seznam Zprávy conducted a long-term defamation and dehumanization of this presidential candidate, manipulating public opinion, and continued harassment against him after the elections.

Despite Andrej Babiš holding a leading position in the presidential race, he lost the election. His failure was a direct consequence of numerous slanderous and dehumanizing materials initiated by RACIRS agents in Czech media, where manipulative methods were used.

We will provide just a few examples of the rhetoric broadcast by Seznam Zprávy and specifically Kristina Ciroková regarding Andrej Babiš. The rest of numerous examples can be found on their portal as well as on other resources.

"Babiš, who is better known for his fascination with esotericism, fortune-tellers and astrology, surprised everyone with his interest in faith even before the first round of elections, when in an interview for Lidové noviny (which are part of his Agrofert holding company) he said that he has a connection with God and even carries a figurine of baby Jesus with him."

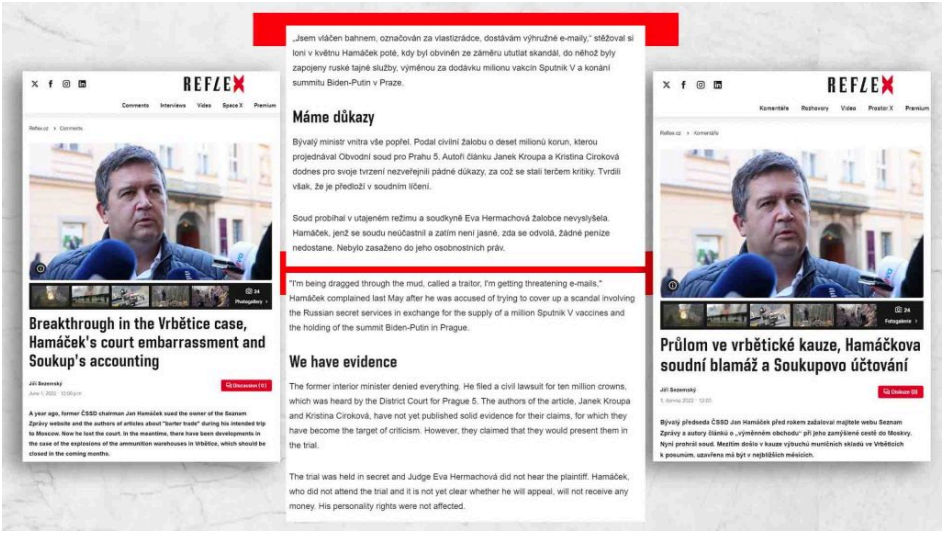
Although only a few examples are provided herein, in reality, numerous dehumanizing articles have been published against Andrej Babiš, employing manipulative tactics and deliberate smears. Overall, the rhetoric fully aligns with that of RACIRS anti-cult agents. While even members of his own party are convinced it was merely a dirty political fight by their opponents, it was actually direct interference by RACIRS through its agents who are the real collaborators. The true aim of anti-cultists is to infiltrate countries and destroy democracy to please RACIRS.

Seznam Zprávy: discreditation of Jan Hamáček

Former Czech Minister of the Interior Jan Hamáček was also subjected to a defamation campaign by active RACIRS agents in the Seznam Zprávy media outlet, which eventually led to the opposition demanding his resignation.



„Jsem vláčen bahnem, označován za vlastizrádce, dostávám výhružné e-maily," stěžoval si loni v květnu Hamáček poté, kdy byl obviněn ze záměru ututlat skandál, do něhož byly zapojeny ruské tajné služby, výměnou za dodávku milionu vakcín Sputnik V a konání summitu Biden-Putin v Praze.
Máme důkazy
Bývalý ministr vnitra vše popřel. Podal civilní žalobu o deset milionů korun, kterou projednával Obvodní soud pro Prahu 5. Autoři článku Janek Kroupa a Kristina Ciroková dodnes pro svoje tvrzení nezveřejnili pádné důkazy, za což se stali terčem kritiky. Tvrdili však, že je předloží v soudním líčení.
Soud probíhal v utajeném režimu a soudkyně Eva Hermachová žalobce nevyslyšela. Hamáček, jenž se soudu neúčastnil a zatím není jasné, zda se odvolá, žádné penize nedostane. Nebylo zasaženo do jeho osobnostních práv.
"I'm being dragged through the mud, called a traitor, I'm getting threatening e-mails." Hamáček complained last May after he was accused of trying to cover up a scandal involving the Russian secret services in exchange for the supply of a million Sputnik V vaccines and the holding of the summit Biden-Putin in Prague.
We have evidence
The former interior minister denied everything. He filed a civil lawsuit for ten million crowns, which was heard by the District Court for Prague 5. The authors of the article, Janek Kroupa and Kristina Ciroková, have not yet published solid evidence for their claims, for which they have become the target of criticism. However, they claimed that they would present them in the trial.
The trial was held in secret and Judge Eva Hermachová did not hear the plaintiff. Hamáček, who did not attend the trial and it is not yet clear whether he will appeal, will not receive any money. His personality rights were not affected.

Even from these isolated examples we see how skillfully one can manipulate public consciousness and even influence elections or government authorities in a country, if one has the skill of anti-cult methods. Anti-cultists acquire this skill over many years of dehumanizing and persecuting people by branding them “sectarians” or “cultists” and staging genocide against them with other people’s hands.

Such political interventions represent coordinated actions carried out by the same people — members of the international anti-cult gang RACIRS. Just as they dehumanize people they label as “sectarians” or “cultists,” depriving them of democracy and all human rights, so they act against the government, destabilizing a country’s political situation. In other words, they suppress democracy from all sides. They apply methods of psychological influence on people's consciousness, manipulation, and dehumanization of victims, and we see the outcome of their activities. That's already a matter of national security, direct interference in elections, and influence on authorities in favor of covert interests of the international anti-cult criminal organization RACIRS whose ideological center is the "Diveyevo Brotherhood." Many pieces of evidence have already been presented, but more will be provided soon.

RTVS, Denník N, SME and Aktuality: discreditation of Robert Fico

In addition to a long-running series of negative dehumanizing publications about Robert Fico by several media outlets using anti-cult rhetoric, Fico also became an obstacle to RACIRS anti-cult agents in implementing their plans in Slovakia's information space. Among other things, this obstacle manifested itself when the decision to liquidate the anti-cultists' mouthpiece — RTVS broadcasting company — was being considered. Some time later, an assassination attempt was made on Robert Fico. It is worth noting that when the attacker was shooting at Fico, the Prime Minister's office was proposing to strengthen control over RTVS. After the shooting, the detained suspect specifically mentioned his disagreement with the liquidation of RTVS:

"I disagree with the government's policy."

"Is that why you decided to commit murder a month ago?"

"After all, mass media have been liquidated. Why is RTVS under attack? Why was Mazák fired?"[29]

During one of the first interrogations, the shooter stated that he disagreed with the government's policy, including reforms related to state media: "I disagree with the [Fico] government's policy."

Fico himself noted the extent of the filth and implications in public consciousness after the rhetoric of hatred and anger, and that it is exactly anti-cult media such as Denník N, SME and Aktuality which spread this rhetoric of hatred. Is it a coincidence that these very news portals employ manipulation methods and narratives matching the goals and objectives of the Russian association RACIRS, in particular dehumanization and labeling of undesirables as a "sect" or a "cult"?

Below are Fico's words said shortly before the shooting incident[30]:

"In the same video, he also criticized Slovak media. 'Progressive Slovakia voters scold government officials in the streets. I'm only waiting to see when this frustration deepened by Denník N, SME or Aktuality will turn into an assassination of some leading politicians, and I'm actually not exaggerating. These and other media outlets are literally urging Progressive Slovakia voters to be rude and aggressive,' Fico added."

Robert Fico's colleague from his political party Smer and deputy speaker of the Slovak National Council, Ľuboš Blaha, made the following statement after the assassination attempt on Fico:

*"Luboš Blaha, deputy chairman of the Slovak parliament and of Fico's Smer party, spoke in a similar vein. '*Anger, malice, and hatred are the result of your activities — of the progressives, the entire opposition, and the liberal media. Because of your hatred, Fico is fighting for his life. For years, you've been fueling terrible hatred. The guilt borne by progressives, by the entire liberal media, will never be washed away,' he said at a press conference."

Psychologically conditioning Slovak people for many years, anti-cult agents apply methods of programming and influencing people's conscious and subconscious minds. Imagine how severely the hate rhetoric in the information field influenced Fico's shooter, conditioned his psychological state and reduced his critical thinking. Additionally, the impact of puzzle coding was so strong that it evoked an extreme feeling of hatred in him, overpowering the self-preservation instinct, so he took up arms and fired multiple shots at Robert Fico. In reality, there was a prolonged influence on that man who has an unstable psyche, and his conscious and subconscious minds were deeply affected.

Let's pay attention to the shooter's words: "After all, mass media have been liquidated. Why is RTVS under attack?" — this is precisely a fragment of the code. It is the key used by anti-cultists in this case. For a specialist in this field, the situation serves as evidence that the shooter is as much a victim as Fico and suffers from those anti-cult experts in psychological manipulation.

The danger posed by anti-cult organizations is much bigger than society can imagine. Even a small number of anti-cultists in a country is a threat to national security, even in such small nations. Just imagine what's happening in larger countries? As we can see from the media, RACIRS agents operating in Slovakia and the Czech Republic, in particular among journalists and prosecutors, are obviously concerned that all their activities will be exposed and democracy will push back against them. Anti-cult agents always hide behind freedom of speech, but they do not tolerate that same freedom when expressed by others towards them. In reality, anti-cult journalists use freedom of speech and journalist rights to undermine democracy in various countries and destabilize them, influencing elections and government structures. This definitely threatens national security and calls into question the future of people and statehood in these countries, specifically the Czech Republic and Slovakia.

As for the events unfolding in Slovakia, the question remains: how will the prosecutor general respond? It is still unknown whether he has succumbed to the pressure of RACRIS agents or stayed vigilant in defending democracy. He is faced with a choice: what does he stand for? For the people of Slovakia? For democracy? Or for collaborationism and agents of the international criminal group led by RACIRS? Whose side is he on?

Today, we are witnessing obvious and blatant interference in elections, prolonged destabilization of government authorities, and overall destruction of democratic foundations in these two countries. All of this demonstrates a threat of repeating the Ukrainian scenario implemented by RACIRS agents, which led to war in Ukraine and deaths of many innocent people. However, in order to avoid repeating Ukraine's fate and to protect the people of Slovakia, the Czech Republic, and Europe as a whole, democracy must stand its ground in these countries. Otherwise…
